Makar Sankranti is a traditional Hindu festival celebrated in most parts of India and Nepal in a myriad of cultural forms. In some parts of India it is observed with great fanfare over a period of 3-4 days. It is celebrated with distinct names and rituals in different parts of the country. For example, in the state of Gujarat it is known as Uttarayan. The kite festival of Uttarayan (Makar Sankranti) is regarded as one of the biggest festivals celebrated in western part of India.

Kite flying during Uttarayan is now celebrated as a regional event in Gujarat. It is declared as a public holiday for 2 days. People often have competitions (also known as kite fighting) during which competitors will entangle the thread used while flying kites in the sky and try to cut the string off of each other's kites by pulling it.

An abrasive thread (Manja) is used while flying kites to ensure cutting the competitors string during a kite fight. Manja is made by coating regular string in glass powder and gum. This practice of using an abrasive thread for kite fighting has posed a great threat to species including birds, fruit-bats, monkeys and even humans. The impact on birds however is much larger. Birds when in flight, fail to notice the fine glass-coated thread and get entangled in the Manja because of which they either get injured or killed.

There has been no systematic study to quantify the impact of bird kills due to kite flying. However, a rough estimate would suggest over 10,000 avian emergencies get attended during the month of January every year. The number of birds which get injured is much higher in urban areas due to higher density of kite flying. Often kites after its line is cut off by an opponent, drifts and gets stuck in trees. The birds get entangled in these strings and get injured due to strangulation or in an attempt to set free. This is one of the biggest reasons why rescue calls of birds continue even after the festival is over.

These days cheaper and more durable “Chinese manjha” is available in the market which is made of nylon and is non-biodegradable. This thread unlike cotton manjha does not lose its strength even after getting wet and hence stays for a long time creating potential threat for the birds.

In order to address this, a workshop on handling avian emergencies during the kite flying festival was held in Gandhinagar

A meeting was held by the forest department along with the animal husbandry department and all the local organizations and volunteers from all over Gandhinagr district to discuss about the way rescues were to be conducted. First aid kits were distributed to all the volunteers after the meeting. Our NSS Unit also contributes in this programme and joined with 6 students are voluntary joined for rescue training .

Ahmedabad: According to a survey, in India, today, in 75% of families, at least one member suffers from some form of substance addiction. Due to substance abuse, 10 people commit suicide in India every day. The future of Indian youth and family life is dangerously insecure, as these statistics reveal. Family life, interpersonal relationships, familial happiness, and peace, which are the fundamental pillars of society, are being severely undermined by substance abuse. Immediate action to address this problem is imperative. In this direction, inspired by Gurudev Shri Shri Ravishankar, the Art of Living organization launched the "Drug-Free India" campaign in 2019.

The "Drug-Free India" program was organized today at Science City, Ahmedabad, under the joint initiative of the Art of Living, Gujarat Technological University, and the G20 Summit. Gurudev Shri Shri Ravishankar stated, "When the level of stress increases significantly, individuals tend to turn towards addictive behaviors. However, when they learn to alleviate stress through yoga, pranayama, and meditation, their approach towards life undergoes a positive transformation".

In this event, Cabinet Minister for Industry, Civil Aviation, and Rural Development Balvant Rajput, State Home Minister Harsh Sanghvi, along with over 5000 youth leaders, vice-chancellors of state universities including GTU, Bollywood actor Manoj Joshi, leading personalities from various fields in Gujarat, such as Sairam Dave, Osman Mir, Kirtidan Gadhvi, Geetaben Rabari, Kinjal Dave, Jigardan Gadhvi, Hitu Kanodiya, and Malhar Thakar, were present.

Bollywood actor Sanjay Dutt conveyed in a video message, "Don't say yes to drugs. Even if your friend offers, firmly say no. If your friend insists and says everyone is doing it, you say, 'I don't'. If he asks what will happen if you just try it once, tell him firmly 'no'. I know it's tempting, but resist the urge even if it's just once".

Manoj Joshi stated that today, India has the highest amount of youth wealth. And this means that efforts are increasingly being made to exploit this weakness and make them vulnerable. He advised students, "Let's work together to develop India, let's drive away addiction from the entire country!"

Martyr's Day

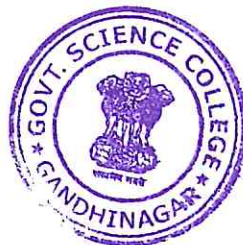

Today, on the occasion of Martyrs' Day, a program was organized by the NSS unit of Gandhinagar Science College to pay tribute to the named and unnamed martyrs who sacrificed their lives for India's freedom. The program saw enthusiastic participation from the college's principal, Prof. Bhatt, as well as all departmental professors and students. The purpose of this program was to make students aware of the sacrifices of the martyrs and to strengthen their patriotic sentiments towards the nation.

At a time when our country was disturbed by the atrocities of the English, a cry for freedom echoed all around. It was during such times that many brave souls were born, who, with laughter, made numerous struggles and sacrifices to attain freedom from the atrocities of the English, ultimately laying down their lives for the country.

Krishna Verma, in Lahore's court, pronounced the death penalty for the courageous revolutionary youth of India, who were instrumental in the freedom movement of Bharat Mata. With ruthless cruelty, the death sentence was imposed on the brave revolutionaries Bhagat Singh, Sukhdev, and Rajguru, as well as other new youth. The execution was scheduled for March 24, but on the evening of March 23, in Lahore jail, Bhagat Singh, Sukhdev, and Rajguru were hanged. Their final rites were performed on the banks of the Satluj River near Hussainiwala in the Firozpur district of Punjab. A memorial has since been erected at that site

Today is March 23rd, Shaheed Diwas (Martyrs' Day). Remembering the brave sons of Bharat Mata, India pays tribute to the martyred heroes on March 23rd. In India, March 23rd is observed as Shaheed Diwas. Sacrificing their lives for India's independence, the brave martyrs Veer Bhagat Singh, Sukhdev Thapar, and Shivaram Rajguru's 92nd martyrdom anniversary is commemorated as 'Shaheed Diwas' nationwide, offering heartfelt tribute and homage. Pays tribute to him and offers Shradha Suman.
